RUSSIA'S TROUBLES.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—At the last meeting of the Committee of Ministers President Witte, according to the Russ, emphasized the necessity for the committee to discuss and formulate its views on the recent events at the capital. He considered that an inquiry into their causes and the initiation of measures to prevent their recurrence were imperative. After a brief discussion, however, the committee rejected M. Witte's suggestion on the ground that such action was not within its jurisdiction.

Forest Protection, Production and Use

Editor Evening Bulletin: Some months ago communications from me upon the above subject appeared in your valuable paper.

The subject is so important I deem it a duty to write further facts about it.

The great difference in expenses and incomes between this new idea of forest growth, protection and use, for these islands, and the old system of "forest reserve," heretofore proposed, advocated and slightly used, is indeed, very great, as may be seen below. This new system of forestry on suitable land can be set, grown and protected from fire without cost to its owner, in fact a forest or suitable territory set off as forest reserve will yield an income as a pasture for stock to protect it from fire, as well as wood, which plantations and others may require; and within six years, telegraph and telephone poles would be in supply from the new forest; and within ten years railroad ties and wharf piling, etc., would be in supply, and within fifteen or twenty years saw logs, from which nearly all the lumber required on these islands could be produced, from the new forest; and of course the money now paid abroad for poles, piling, lumber and for the labor of producing these values would be retained at home. All business men know what that would mean to the business of these islands. Under this Roosevelt system of "growing forests for use," our old, almost useless, diseased and dying forests, now rood for fires, would be replaced by a young, rapid growing, valuable forest, free from disease and destructive insects. Our forests, under the old regime, will yield no income—no wood, lumber or grass—will be subject to fires, notwithstanding the vigilance of expensive guards for preventing them. After fires are started in an old forest, ungrazed by stock, of a dry, windy time, day or night, man is powerless to cope with it, which was proven by our Hamakua fire of 1901, which fifty men failed to stop, working day and night. Which must be the fate, sooner or later, of all large forests ungrazed by stock. Fires in such forests may be set by lightning or some unexplainable cause; guards may keep out bee and bird hunters, wild dog and hog hunters, fires from adjoining cane plantations, homestead brush burners, pipe and cigar smokers, etc., but it will be at great expense and vigilance. Yet nothing is safe from fire in an old ungrazed forest, with so much fire food over all the ground. So one of the greatest and most valuable lessons to be shown to the people of these islands is by proceeding with forest production and protection under this new idea, which was made plain in my former communication upon forestry; and shows how to protect forests from fire without cost to its owner. The great fire in Hamakua, Hawaii in the drought of 1901 contains this valuable lesson, as there is now to be seen a nice, thrifty young forest that was saved from that fire by the grazing of stock the past twenty and more years. It is now park-like in appearance, instead of being covered by dead trees, which it would have been but for the stock, as the fire was approaching it on three sides. This course of forest reserve and production shows how forests may be protected from fire, and impart to the people and this Territory all of the above named blessings. None of which will come to them from the old forest reserve principle, as recommended repeatedly for these islands.

This new idea of growing and protecting forests for these islands is not a "think so," a "theory," a "dream," a "whim," or "guesswork," but plain demonstrated facts. The ten-year-old eucalyptus, eighty feet high, twelve inches in diameter; and the native forest mentioned above, saved from fire by stock grazing, are now to be seen at Kula, Hamakua, Hawaii. Don't doubt, come and see.

TOOK WORLD RECORD.

San Francisco, Jan. 26.—A world's record made at the old Bay District track has been wiped out. In 1895 George F. Smith, with 100 pounds in the saddle, ran five furlongs on a circular course in 0:59. This record has stood for ten years, but last month, at Auckland, New Zealand, a four-year-old bay horse, Machine Gun, eclipsed all previous records by running the distance in the phenomenally fast time of 0:58, which was a second faster than the previous world's record.

The feature of the wonderful performance is that Machine Gun carried the extraordinary impost of 159 pounds. It was in the Randolph handicap that Machine Gun broke the world's record. The same horse also won the Electric Plate.

Machine Gun is a son of Hotchkiss, of the famous Musket family. He was bred by George G. Stead, the J. B. Haggin of the New Zealand turf. The Musket family contains many stars of the turf, including Carbine, who won the Melbourne cup with 145 pounds in the saddle. The best Musket representative ever brought to America was Maxim.

HORSEMAN DIED POOR.

New York, Jan. 25.—After having made and lost a fortune at the race track, Captain William Carter, 68 years old, died today in a furnished room in Brooklyn. Captain Carter was originally a stevedore and had about $5000 when he began betting on the horses. In a few years he had amassed a small fortune, and he then bought several fast horses. When the building of Aqueduct race track was proposed, Captain Carter was one of the most liberal contributors. For this a race was named after him, which has been known ever since as the Carter handicap.

Carter began plunging on the races, and his enormous bets were subject of considerable comment. At one time his wealth was estimated at more than $500,000, but a succession of losses made such inroads upon his fortune that he was forced at last to sell his horses. His affairs went from bad to worse, and he lost bet after bet. Finally he was forced to borrow from friends, but after a while they deserted him.
